Like all artists I want to cheat death a little and contribute something to the next generation.

I am just a middle-class farm boy from Dodge City and my grandparents were wheat farmers. I thought painting, acting, directing and photography was all part of being an artist. I have made my money that way. And I have had some fun. It's not been a bad life.

Walking is the most popular type of exercise, so this year we focused our Best Walking Cities list on ideal locations to head out for a heart-pumping walking workout. Tops on the list of what makes a place "fitness walker friendly" are safe streets, beautiful places to walk, mild weather, and good air quality.

Here are some of the specific criteria we used. Each criterion was weighted as heavy, medium or light in terms of importance.

- % of pop that walks for exercise • Use of mass transit • Parks per square mile • Points of interest per square mile • Avg winter/summer temperatures • % of athletic shoe buyers

"We've played in tougher places. At Wichita State, those fans would stand up and clap at the beginning of each half, and until their team scores, they don't sit down. We had 'em clapping for four minutes one time...And I think everybody had a knife but us. That was a tough place to play."

John Chaney, former Temple head basketball coach from 1983-2000, when asked about a pro-Carolina crowd they would face at a 1988 tournament in Charlotte, N.C.
