

Don't be shelf-ish.
Dispose of household hazardous wastes properly.

WE'VE GOT A GOOD THING
GOING HERE.

Household hazardous waste.

There's an estimated 100 pounds of household hazardous waste in the average American home. It's the dried-up bucket of paint in the basement, the old antifreeze in the garage. When it's time to dispose, do it right. Read the label and follow the instructions.
