SCORING:

Any number over 30 indicates a vulnerability to stress, meaning that you would benefit from incorporating “wellness” activities into your lifestyle. A score of 50-75 is considered “seriously” vulnerable, meaning that you may experience negative impact from the stressors in your life. A score of more than 75 is considered “extremely vulnerable.”

If your score is high, pick two or three “trouble spots” as indicated in the quiz, and try to think of one or two things to do to improve your score in each area. If you are unable to think of things to try, your efforts don’t seem to work, or if the stress in your life feels completely overwhelming, counseling may be helpful.
